PLANS FOR CHAUTAUQUA BEING MADE

Chautauqua season tickets this year will be $2.00 instead of $2.20 for adults, and $1.00 instead of $1.10 for children. This is made possible by the elimination of war tax.

The local chautauqua committee secured this exemption by compliance with certain conditions laid down by the department of internal revenue outlined by John J. Joseph, representing the Redpath Chautauqua, at a meeting Friday evening.

Chautauqua patrons have the further satisfaction of knowing that any profits accruing from the chautauqua will be used for philanthropic purposes.

Season tickets for the program which is to be held June 10th to 14th, inclusive, have been placed on sale. There is every reason for a successful campaign, as the Redpath programs in recent years have been of the highest quality, and the announcement for 1922 reveals a combination of lecturers, entertainers and musicians that merits enthusiastic support. Such members as Alton Packard, cartoonist; William Rainey Bennett, lecturer; the modern drama, "Friendly Enemies"; and Princess TeAta with her Indian friends are of a calibre rarely found except in the largest cities.

Chautauqua's second advance man is due one week in advance of the program and will remain until the superintendent comes with his equipment.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Bedford on June 24, 1922 to fill the position of rural carrier at Mann's Choice.

A Grand Recital will be given by Prof. Robert Hayes Waters, A. M. Baltimore's famous reader and entertainer, assisted by some of Bedford's best talent for benefit of the Sunday school at the A. M. E. Zion church on Wednesday May 31, at 8 p. m. Admission 20 cents.

YOU MUST SUBMIT TO THE INDEPENDENT REPUBLICANS

The organization of the Independent Republican League brought a new phase to the voters of Bedford County. Before the Independent League was organized Harry C. James controlled the Republican situation in Bedford County. Of course Harry did all he could for his friends and was a little too enthusiastic maybe for those who were close to him to the exclusion of the rest but Harry's strength did not always preclude that all his friends would win out to the total exclusion of the rest of the aspirants to office.

He did what he could to help everybody and kept hands off entirely in a political battle when two or more of his friends war, out for office as in the last fight for Members of the Legislature. Hoover, Gamp, Keocle and Campbell were all Harry's friends and Harry kept a neutral position but when the League formed and brought out Prof. W. H. Hinkle it put a different face on the future methods of politics in Bedford County. Instead of having to brave the storm of one man, candidates will have to face the opposition of a group of men who have set a precedent of setting up their own candidate as they did Wright. A combination consisting of A. B. Egolf, Patrick Hughes, Wm. Brice, Jr., B. F. Madore, John C. Chamberlain, John M. Reynolds, Russell Longenecker, D. C. Reiley, Charles R. Moeck, A. L. Little and Fred Metzger is a combination that is impenetrable and all powerful and if it means to control Republican politics of Bedford County the only thing for a candidate to do is to get the endorsement of the Independent League and go home and if he doesn't get this endorsement he might as well go home any way for it is no use for any one individual to try to breast a storm of influence such as this combination presents. If the rank and file of Republicans want a combination of this sort to pick out their candidates, a combination of financial and political influence such as Bedford County never before saw, then go to it and vote the ticket.

If the Republican party wants a free hand hereafter in the selection of its candidates then break the League's neck at the beginning, the beginning. The way to do that is to vote for John T. Matt for the Legislature.

MANUAL TRAINING EXHIBIT

Through the courtesy of the Metzger Hardware Company, the window of their store has been secured for an exhibit of the woodwork done in the Manual Training class of the High school this year.

This is the first time that manual training has been offered in our school, and it was taken up as an experiment. An empty room in the basement was assigned to the boys as a workshop, and with a few tools, furnished partly by the school, and partly by the boys, they set out to construct work benches. The room was put into order, and the benches were built, and by the end of the third month of the school year they were ready to begin work on some projects in more accurate woodworking. The boys were allowed to choose what they would make, from a list made up by the teacher, and they have chosen articles ranging in size from tables to tie-racks. The work is not perfect, but it has accomplished its aim, i. e. to make the students intelligent observers of the work done by others, and to create in them the desire to do still better work in the same line. There is not a member of the class who has not put in more hours than were required at times, in order to accomplish some particular piece of work.

The purpose of this exhibit is to show to the citizens of the community that the boys appreciate the opportunity to take up handwork in school and to suggest, by comparison, the possibilities if conditions were more favorable. It is to be hoped that this source will be continued in the future and be made available to a greater number, for without doubt, many boys who quit school at the earliest possible age might be held over, if they had some work which appealed to them as the manual training does. The work done by our boys was highly commended by the state director when he visited Bedford, so it is at least worth going to see what has been done during the year.

OSTER-BONSTEEL

A very pretty wedding was performed in St. Clairsville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Oster at high noon on Thursday, May 18, when Miss Bertha, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oster, was united in marriage to Mr. Ralph Bonsteel of Cleveland, Ohio, in the presence of a few friends. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. F. Dittmar, who was formerly Mr. and Mrs. Oster's pastor.

After the wedding, a splendid repast was served and the happy pair left amid the congratulations and best wishes of friends for the usual tour, after which they expect to reside in Cleveland.

DAIRYMEN TO HOLD JERSEY FIELD DAY

Dairymen over the county will gather at Everett on Saturday, June 3rd to attend and take part in the Jersey Field Day and meeting which will feature the exhibition of 25 head of Jersey Cattle owned by members of the Everett Jersey Bull Association and the 5 bulls recently purchased by them from Hood Farms, Massachusetts.

Beginning at 11 P. M. an Adult Judging Contest will be staged, open to all dairymen. Later the cattle will be judged by Prof. J. R. Dawson of the Pennsylvania State College.

The Business Men's Association of Everett will award prizes of $15.00, $10.00 and $5.00 for the three best cows exhibited. Only Jersey cows from herds under Federal Supervision will be exhibited.

During the afternoon interest will center with the meeting in the moving picture house where free moving pictures and slides will be shown. Among the speakers there will be a Representative of the American Jersey Cattle Club, Pennsylvania State Bankers' Association from Grove City and the Dairy Department of the Penna. State College.

The members of the Association are extending all dairymen and their families a cordial invitation to attend both forenoon and afternoon events.

With the purchase of 5 Jersey bulls carrying the best butterfat producing Jersey blood in the world, the farmers in the vicinity of Everett have shaped into definite form a project which has been under consideration for the last several weeks.

The plan for improvement calls for the cooperative use of the sires purchased by 22 dairymen who divide themselves into 5 groups, one bull to each group. The relation of the bulls from group to group every two year period insures the owners of at least 8 years and more, probably 10 years service at a nominal cost.

The men have recently organized themselves into an organization known as the Everett Jersey Bull Association with a constitution and by-laws to definitely govern their operations. Their purpose includes:

1. Possession of higher producing cows by the continued use of sires with high producing ancestors.

2. Increasing the population of Jersey cattle to such an extent as to make the Everett community known as a Jersey Cattle center and thereby attract Jersey buyers from neighboring counties and states.

3. The better insurance against contagious abortion by prohibiting promiscuous breeding to public sires and the breeding of cows of non members.

4. The cooperation with the Federal and State Governments in stamping out tuberculosis in cattle and humans by placing their herds under Federal Supervision.

Veterinarians, Dr. Jones and Dr. Schuey of the Bureau of Animal Industry have completed their work of testing the herds for tuberculosis. The members were enabled to obtain these men at the expense of the State under what is known as the Accredited Herd Plan. The Accredited Herd plan also calls for the slaughter and payment for those tubercular. Of 272 head tested not a single tubercular cow was found.

Chief interest will now center around the 5 bulls upon their arrival at Everett on June 3rd. All five sires are grandsons of Sople 19th of Hood Farms, the worlds champion long distance cow in production and reproduction. Two of the bulls are sons of Pogie 99th the greatest Jersey Bull in the world.

The purchasing committee composed of Francis Baker, Vice-President and John S. Hershberger, President of the Association, traveled to Lowell, Massachusetts at their own expense to select the bulls. They were accompanied and assisted by Prof. J. R. Dawson of the Pennsylvania State College Extension Service, a dairy cattle specialist of wide experience.

Dr. J. H. Castor of the Supply Wills Jones Co., and County Agent L. R. Mollenauer who also made the trip are in close touch with the organization in an advisory capacity. The First National Bank of Everett is lending assistance to the project in the hope of bettering the community.

PROGRAM READY FOR S. S. CONVENTION

As you officers look over the program prepared for you, your inspiration and your aid, we feel we have for you Sunday School workers of Bedford County about one of the best rounded out programs yet offered you.

We are ready and want each school in the county, right now to take steps to be ready to profit by this program of good things.

We have on this program some of Bedford County's most earnest workers people who know the needs of Bedford County Sunday Schools and they will bring you the benefit of their experience; and it is the committee's intention to try, through open forum, to give you a chance to ask questions and discuss your problems and also to bring us the benefit of any plans or methods on which you have been successful.

Prof. I. H. Mack of Philadelphia will be in charge of the music and our own good Prof. S. H. Koonitz complimented us in our ability to secure him saying, "He's fine."

To mention the names of just three of the speakers should be a drawing card to bring out the greatest attendance we have yet had. For instance:

Rev. C. R. Scate of Tyone, of whom very many of you have heard, and his wonderful address on "Jesus Christ as a Bible Teacher." He will be present Thursday evening.

Then W. G. Landes, our State Sabbath School Secretary, and who was recently elected secretary of the World's Sunday School Association. Mr. Landes will speak Friday morning, afternoon and evening, and you will want to bring your note books along and note down some of the good things he will give, so you can take them home and put them into practice.

Then Dr. Francis Harvey Green of Pennington, N. J., will speak Friday afternoon on "Our Delightful Task." And Friday evening his subject is "The Best Wardrobe."

This Sunday School work is your convention planned for you by officers who have tried to serve you faithfully. Show your appreciation by seeing to it that your school is represented and that your school and community get the good things from this convention, things which, if taken home and used, will build up not only school and community, but your country.

TELLER CONFESSES IN BANK EMBEZZLEMENT

Coatesville, Pa., Bank Loss is Over $200,000—Others May be Implicated in Robbery.

Coatesville, Pa., May 21.—Bank examiners today said that another arrest may be made in connection with the embezzlement of approximately $200,000 from the National Bank of Coatesville.

Raymond W. Newlin, receiving teller, who was arrested yesterday after having admitted the theft of an unknown amount, is still in jail in default of $20,000 bond.

His young wife today turned over to the authorities jewelry valued at $6,000 which Newlin had given her in the last eighteen months. Seven expert accountants worked all last night and today on the books of the bank.

Late in the day M. W. Pownall, cashier, said the embezzlements exceeded $200,000 and may reach $250,000.

"It does not impair the reserves of the bank in any way," said Mr. Pownall. "We have a surplus of more than $700,000 and Newlin was bonded for $50,000. The bank will open in the morning as usual."

Newton had admitted his theft. He took nothing but cash and covered his thefts by false entries. He has not told us yet how he lost his money, but intimates it was through speculation in oil and stock markets.

The bank examiners did not intimate whether any one else was under suspicion but said it was highly improbable that Newton had acted alone.

THE BONUS

The Republican leaders are like the business man who subscribed for the building of a church, and then FOUGHT the LOCATION to avoid paying the subscription. All the Republicans want the bonus, but they cannot agree upon the way to raise the money Democrats will vote for it and then find a better way when a Democratic congress is elected.

STEAMER EGYPT HAS COLLISION

Most of Missing Were Members of Crew.

RESCUING HINDERED BY FOG

Two American Women Among the Missing

Brest, France, May 21.—Nearly 100 persons perished last night when the Peninsular and Oriental Line steamer, Egypt, sank off the island of Ushant after a collision with the French freight steamer Seine.

The Egypt sailed from London for Bombay Friday, with 44 passengers and a crew of 290. A roll call on board the Seine after the disaster showed that at least fifteen of the passengers and eighty of the crew of the Egypt were missing.

The collision occurred during a dense fog, within twenty-two miles of the Armen light house. The dinner gong was about to be sounded on board the Egypt. Many of the passengers and most of the crew were on deck. The shock threw several persons into the sea; others jumped and a number went down with the ship, which sank in twenty minutes. The Egypt was rammed amidship on the port side.

Freighter Reaches Port

The Seine, badly damaged, reached Brest today, with twenty-nine passengers, more than 200 of the crew and the bodies of twenty dead. The captain of the Egypt is among the saved.

When the collision occurred there was a rolling sea. Some of those rescued charged that the Indian sailors on board the Egypt took to the life boats immediately. The vessels crashed, so that a large number of passengers and crew had to shift for themselves.

Those who jumped into the sea and could swim scrambled about for bits of wreckage to which they might cling. Many of these were rescued. They floated about in the fog after the Egypt went down calling for help. The sound of their voices directed members of the crew of the Sein in small boats, who were patrolling the seas picking up both living and dead.

Fog Hinders Rescuers

In some instances the rescue crews came upon persons clinging to bits of debris who let go and sank just as aid for them was at hand. The small boats on numerous occasions sought vainly in the fog to locate persons lifting cries of distress through the fog. Among the known missing are the Doctor and Chief Engineer of the Egypt.

The Egypt was a vessel of 8,000 tons. The Seine was bound for Havre when the disaster occurred.

Americans Missing

London, May 21.—Two American women, Mrs. M. L. Sibley and Miss G. M. Boyer, were on board the steamer Egypt and are missing, according to the Peninsular and Oriental Line officials here. Their home addresses are not known to the company.

R. F. Bevans, another American was saved.

28 Passengers Saved

London, May 21.—Late tonight the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company announced that only thirty eight passengers had sailed on the Egypt and gave out a list of the names of twenty-eight of these passengers who were rescued and landed at Brest.

LESSON FOR MAY 28.

JEREMIAH SPEAKS BOLDLY FOR GOD.

LESSON TEXT.—Jer. 28.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Amend your ways and
your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord—Jer. 27:13.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—II Sam
12:1-14, I Kings 21:17-21, Jer. 7:1-15; Amos 8:1-3.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Brave Prophet.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Brave Prophet's Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—
Jeremiah Speaks Boldly for God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—
When and How Should Wrong Be Rebuked?

1. Jeremiah's Solemn Warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).

The Lord commanded him to stand
in a conspicuous place in the temple
and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to provoke them to repentance (v. 3). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v. 6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place
of the Lord and now fallen into decay
and abandoned, so will it be with the temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak
the words the Lord had told him and
not to diminish a word.

II. Jeremiah on Trial (vv. 8-11).

1. Cause of Arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfully speaking all that the Lord had commanded. The one who speaks boldly what God commands
shall be opposed. The time-server and self-seeker will not stand for such a ministry.

2. The Charge (vv. 8, 9). It was a capital crime. They said, "Thou shalt surely die." His guilt according to their charge was twofold: (1) Pretending to speak for God; (2) Speaking against the temple and the city.
According to their charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege.

3. The Princes Sit in Judgment
(vv. 10, 11). When the excitement reached the ears of the princes they came to judge of the merits of the case. Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and
elders, but were partly controlled by members of the royal family.

III. Jeremiah's Defense (vv. 12-15).

1. Reiterates His Divine Commission (v. 12). He had nothing to deny,
but to repeat what he had said. He plainly told them that in opposing
him they were opposing God, for he was God's messenger.

2. His Exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God, and God would not bring upon them judgment. Their threats
did not cause him to suppress or soften his message.

3. He Gave Himself Up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1). Knowing that he was sent of God he was content to trust God for deliverance. He did not fear what man could do unto him.

4. Warnings of Fatal Consequence
(v. 15). He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed
him they would be guilty of defying
God. Resistance to God's prophet
would be resistance to God. Woe
would not only fall upon them, but
the nation and city would suffer.

IV. Jeremiah Saved (vv. 16-24).

He was acquitted. God is able to raise up friends and advocates from
the ranks of those who oppose us.
All hearts are in God's hands.

1. Judgment of the Princes (v. 16).
They pronounced him not guilty, as he had spoken in the name of the Lord. Jeremiah's words convinced
them that he was speaking the truth.

2. Speech of the Elders (vv. 17-23).
As the princes probably represented
the king, so the elders represented
the people.

The elders plead for Jeremiah and
adduced several cases in illustration:
(1) Micah (vv. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but the king Hezekiah instead of putting him
to death, repented and thus turned
aside the punishment which was impending. (2) Urijah (vv. 20-23).
Urijah prophesied against the city and
land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who brought him back
from Egypt whence he had fled and slew him.

Though all this was done, judgment
was not thus thwarted. Killing God's prophets does not prevent God's judgment, but intensifies it. In the case of Hezekiah God's judgments were turned aside through heeding the words of the prophet, and in the case
of Jehoiakim judgment fell upon the nation because of refusal and mal-
treatment of the prophet.

3. Rescued by Ahikam (v. 24).
Ahikam must have been a man of influence such as to be able to interfere
at such a time.

Friendship That Never Fails.

Suppose Jesus were in your company, would it not make life strong
and pure and effective, full of power
and sweetness and power and joy to
have such a friend always at hand?
His is a companionship that never grows wearisome, and His is a friendship that never fails, and it reaches
through time and eternity.

HAPHAZARD EXTENSION

The Department of Agriculture is
one instance of how governmental establishments grow and spread and extend their activities, once they get started. The bureau of fisheries, in the Department of Commerce, is another. It had a modest beginning, and not so very long ago. Prior to 1871
there was no branch of the federal government especially charged with
the consideration of fishery affairs.

Several of the states had established
fish commissions and these state authorities, supported by private interests, began to agitate for a national bureau devoted to fishery interests.

So it came about that by 1871 congress was ready to yield and begin to make appropriations. The first one was for $5,000 and provided for a commissioner of fish and fisheries to prosecute investigations and inquiries
"with the view of ascertaining whether
any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast
and in the lakes of the United States
has taken place; and also whether
any and what protective, prohibitory
or precautionary measures should be adopted in the premises; and shall report upon the same to congress."

The commissioner was to draw his
pay, for it was provided by congress
in the same joint resolution that he should be a civil officer of the government, of proved scientific and practical acquaintance with the fishes of the coast, who should serve without additional compensation. The then assistant secretary of the Smithsonian institution, by name Spencer Fullerton Baird, was chosen as the best man for the job, and so he proved to be. He made the little acorn grow. He was industrious and competent and knew how to get along with congress. He was diligent, and he stood before kings.
See what happened.

Remember, he started out with $5,000 to discover whether there had been any diminution of the supply of food fishes along the coasts or in the lakes. He was at the head of an independent investigation and reported directly to congress. The thing was kept alive by annual appropriations
as an independent institution until 1903, when it was incorporated into the newly formed Department of Commerce and Labor as the bureau of fisheries.

By 1909 the annual appropriation had grown to $803,020, and the bureau had a permanent personnel of 325. At that time the land owned and occupied by the bureau at its fish cultural and
biological stations had an aggregate
area of over 12,000 acres, with a value
of $240,000. The improvements and equipment at these stations represented an investment of more than $1,000,000. Other property of the bureau at that time included four sea-
going steam and sail vessels, 20 steam launches and 150 small sail, power and rowboats, with equipment had a value of $300,000. Its six fish-transportation cars were valued at $45,000.
Indeed, the total investment of the government in fishery-service property
ran to about $1,585,000. That was back in 1909.

Well, it hasn't stopped growing,
bigger and busier than ever, as the advertisements say. The appropriation by congress for the fiscal year 1919 was $1,182,110, and for 1921, $1,207,110.
Besides what congress gave the President allotted in 1918 and 1919, out of his private fund "for the national security and defense," $160,000. With the years of its growth and increasing
funds the bureau had taken on many
new functions and activities.

Until recently the bureau was administering to the best of its ability
the laws relating to the terrestrial and aquatic fur bearers of Alaska, but
the duty was incongruous to its legiti-mate functions. Congress finally conceded that the pursuit of foxes does not constitute a fishery. The cultivation of minks cannot be successfully
conducted in a fish hatchery.

Apparently, as so many other establishments, under the executive branch
have, the fisheries service had become
all cluttered up with duties and jobs
it is not fitted or equipped to handle.

All of which is a long, long way
from an investigation of the possible
diminution of food fish along the coast.

I don't pretend to say of the fisheries
bureau that it has performed ineffi-
ciently either its proper work or the
added activities that have been imposed upon it. For all I know it may be and is a great national blessing, and managed with maximum skill
intelligence and real economy. I hope it is.

I cite it here only as an example of a branch of governmental activity that
has grown up haphazard from a small
beginning to be a great, costly, far-
spreading enterprise that by its own
confession is overlaid with duties,
functions and activities unrelated to
its legitimate and essential business—
the care, propagation and source of our manner of food fish.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

York.—For the first time in ten years York is entirely free from diphtheria in May, local Health Director Small stated that the record can be attributed to three years devoted to the health board to seek out and iso-
late carriers of the disease.

Hazleton.—The tanks of the Atlantic Refining company here were bombarded by three men with revolvers,
who fired many shots at the structures, but fled when the police were called. It is thought they planned to start leaks and set fire to the fluid.

Ellwood City.—The press of the Ellwood City Ledger was wrecked by the stripping of gears, resulting in damage to the extent of $1500. It is believed that it was the work of political enemies opposed to the attitude taken
by the paper in supporting certain candidates. The paper was compelled to suspend publication temporarily.

Harrisburg.—The highway department announced awards of two contracts to the Smethport Construction company, of Union City. One for 22-608 feet, beginning at the southern limit of Meadville, at $173,123.10, was assigned to the J. C. Devine company,
of Alliance, O. The other was for 27-376 feet, beginning at the Crawford-Mercer line and connecting with a route in Venango county, at $203-138.65.

Pittsburgh.—The tipples at three wagon mines near Turtle Creek, a
suburb, were blown up with a loss of approximately $1500. No one was hurt. The mines have been in operation
with small forces since the coal
strike was called.

Chester.—The police raided the residence of Joseph Baltrunas and found
two stills, one a 140-gallon affair, and a quantity of home-brewed liquor. The stills and liquor were confiscated and Baltrunas was held for a hearing.

Pottsville.—An attempt to kill Alvin Brenner, of Auburn, was made, he being fired on from ambush as he was walking along a highway. The bullet passed within a hair's breadth of his head, and Brenner, for the time, was overcome by his narrow escape. He is employed by the Seamless Tube Works at Auburn.

Scranton.—An 11-year-old schoolboy
of West Scranton, Roscoe Boyko, was electrocuted when he climbed a tree
near a school ground and came in contact with a heavily charged electric wire.

Pottsville.—David Snyder, aged 17,
a ball player, died as the result of being hit on the head by a pitched ball
while playing on the Schuylkill valley,
six miles from here. The ball hit him
back of the right ear and he fell unconscious. First aid was administered,
but as he failed to recover he was taken to the State Hospital at Pottsville.
Springs, but the physicians found it impossible to revive him. No blame
is attached to the pitcher who threw
the ball.

Harrisburg.—Fire Warden Dewey
Scuderi, of Shenandoah, has made
the first claim for the reward offered
for the arrest and conviction of a person starting a forest fire. His claim
is for $250 for causing the conviction
of two men who were convicted in the Schuylkill county courts. The reward
was offered two years ago and this is the first claim.

Point Marion.—Setting off an automatic revolver in cleaning it, Edward Aversman, of Locust Hill, near Point
Marion, was shot several times before he could stop the firing. Four shots
were discharged, three entering his legs. It is believed that an artery was severed and Aversman, weak from loss
of blood, was hurried to the Uniontown Hospital. He told Dr. L. N. Bur-chinal, of Point Marion, who attended
him that he unintentionally discharged
the weapon in some manner, and he
with other members of the family declared the shooting was entirely accidental.

New Castle.—So scarce has labor become as a result of the resumption of the mills in New Castle, that Contractor Perry, who is constructing the new Mount Jackson route, south of the city, has appealed to the board of trade here to secure enough men to complete the work which is already behind schedule.

Pittsburgh.—Two unmasked bandits
entered a store in the East Liberty
district, held up the manager and his
two daughters, locked the front door
and then leisurely robbed the safe of $565. They then opened the door, and walking into the street, disappeared
in the crowd of noonday shoppers.

Pottsville.—Fifty more men were suggested at the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron shops here in the move for economy being made by the company to cut down its expenses
while coal mining is suspended. Seven hundred other men will continue to work three days a week.

Uniontown.—More than 3000 Elks
helped to observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of Elksdom here.

Lewistown.—Miss Helen Weber, a junior in the high school here, won the
first honors in the first girls' inter-
school oratorical contest.

Cool Springs.—Struck by a base ball
as he sat on the front porch of his home reading a newspaper, John Colbert, aged 48, of this place, lost the sight of his right eye.

Fairbairn.—Falling over a stake in a foot race, Lewis Cooley, aged 23, of this place, fractured a shoulder and foot.

New Castle.—Joseph Shatto, editor
of the Sharon Telegraph, and Charles E. Perigo, reporter on the same paper,
are lying in a critical condition at a
local hospital as a result of injuries
sustained when an automobile in which they were returning to Sharon
after attending a circus here hit a telephone pole. Both suffered skull fractures and were terribly cut on their heads and shoulders. The car
was practically demolished.

Harrisburg.—A decrease of six industrial fatalities in April as compared with March, with a marked decline in the number of mine casualties,
due to the suspension of mining, was
reported by the commissioner of labor
and industry. Mining fatalities for April were 38, as compared to 57 in March. Fayette and Schuylkill counties had five each and Westmoreland
county six. Other accidents included 47 in general industry and 19 on railroads and other public utilities. Commissioner Connelly said figures on permanent injuries for the month showed the loss of 37 eyes and 25 feet. Compensation awarded on permanent injuries totaled $230,000.

Pittsburgh.—Jilted after a three years courtship, George West, 26 years
old, shot his sweetheart, Miss Elvira Schuman, 22, and her companion, Mrs.
Muriel Miller, 35, and then fired a bullet into his own head. The two women were on their way to work on a North Side street when they encountered West. He opened fire immediately. The three were rushed to the Presbyterian hospital here it was announced West and Miss Schuman
were in a dying condition. The injury
of Mrs. Miller was serious.

Harrisburg.—Appointment of Bishop
McDevitt, of the Harrisburg diocese,
as chaplain of the Knights of Columbus for Pennsylvania, was announced
here by State Deputy Kennedy.

Hazleton.—There has been another
heavy migration of aliens from the Lehigh coal field to Europe during the last few days, most of them being Poles, who are returning to their native country to remain permanently.
They are accompanied by their families, and believe that Poland offers
great opportunities under stabilized
conditions following the war.

Lewistown.—John Goss, who has been "bucking" the Armaugh township school board for two years, was liberated from the county jail upon
his agreeing to send his children to school and pay the costs of $50 and a fine of $5.

Shicklesbury.—Authorities are investigating the mysterious fire which destroyed the Methodist church and Grange Hall at Muhlenberg, five miles from here, with a loss of $6000. The blaze was discovered by the pastor of the church, Rev. George Metzger, when the heat broke the windows and the flames came shooting out. The entire interior then was afire, and the wind
swept the flames across the road to the Grange Hall. It was only by the hardest kind of a fight that a dozen
other buildings nearby were prevented
from burning.

Carpentertown.—Wade Calp, a night
fireman in the works of the Mount Pleasant-Connellsville Coke company,
was killed when a cage fell 250 feet
to the bottom of the shaft.

Venango.—H. E. Bunce, of Olean, N.
Y., has been awarded the contract to build 28,282 feet of road between here
and Saegertown for $220,298.05.

Lewistown.—Roy Esthworthy, 12
years old, accidentally struck on the head by a twelve-pound shot at the high school athletic grounds here, remained unconscious five hours.

York.—Authorities here are trying to find the source of a stream of counterfeit half dollars pouring into local stores.

Lancaster.—Members of the Lancaster board of education have endorsed
the movement to place a loan of $1-225,000 before the taxpayers for their approval.

White Haven.—A raiding bear visited the farm of C. W. Strauck, at Pike's Peak near here, for three successive nights and destroyed beehives
to get the honey.

Harrisburg.—Harry A. Nye, director
of personnel of the General Electric company at Erie, has been named to fill the vacancy on the state industrial
board caused by the death of Dr. A. L.
Garver, of Blair county. Dr. Garver
was representative of employees on the state board.

Huntingdon.—M. H. Canan, of Altoona, was appointed a member of the board of managers of the State Industrial Reformatory here.

Connellsville.—By actual count it
was discovered that nearly 50 per cent
of the high school girls here have been
hit by the bobbed-hair craze.

Shenandoah.—A small cut and infected finger, the infection spreading
through his body, caused the death of Charles F. Stauffenberg, 47 years old.

Hazleton.—Miss Genevieve Rosen-
blum has been selected as valedictori-
an at the high school here and Miss Mary Britt will be salutatorian.

Mt. Carmel.—Running into the street
in front of an automobile here, John Wayne, 5 years old, was run down and seriously injured.

Lewistown.—L. P. Stannert, proprietor of a cafe here, was exonerated
of a charge of selling and having intoxicants in his possession illegally at
a hearing before Justice of the Peace Kase.

Laurytown.—A herd of deer consisting of two bucks, six does and a fawn
have taken up their abode on the farm
of Eli Reinholdt, in the Laurytown valley.

MAY SPEED SHIP SUBSIDY MEASURE

PROBABILITY IS, HOWEVER, THE BILL WILL NOT BE PASSED FOR SEVERAL MONTHS.

NOT URGED WITH ENTHUSIASM

Widely Varying Opinions of Its Advocates and Opponents—Attitude of the West and Middle West Is Rather Uncertain.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington. — Republican members of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries and of the senate commerce committee have told President Harding that an attempt will be made to put twin propellers on the ship subsidy bill in order that it may be speeded on its way through congress.

Such promises as these have been heard before in Washington, and it perhaps is a fairly safe wager that the subsidy measure will not break speed limits on its attempted voyage through a legislative ocean beset with rocks and sand bars.

This does not mean that a subsidy will not be voted. It seems to be conceded generally by legislators of both parties that the American merchant marine cannot be made successful unless a government subsidy shall be granted, but the opponents of the measure say a weak merchant marine, or no merchant marine at all, will be better than one supported by public funds.

It is true that there is not much pulsing enthusiasm today among the members of the majority in house and senate over subsidy legislation, but, nevertheless, the belief seems to be that such a measure will pass some time before the present congress goes to its death on March fourth of next year.

Widely Varying Opinion.

Not long ago Chairman Lasker of the shipping board made a report to the administration, and on the basis of it the subsidy bill was framed and introduced into congress. It has been called variously by its proponents and its opponents a measure "to rehabilitate the American marine," "to make prosperous the shipping, the agricultural and the manufacturing interests of the United States," "an ocean-going pork barrel bill" and a legislative attempt "to rob the American people." These characterizations of the measure will give instantly an idea of the conflicting viewpoints.

Not long ago some Republican leaders in congress declared they had evidence that the West and Middle West were not only becoming reconciled to the thought of ship subsidy legislation, but were becoming favorable to it. It was in the agricultural districts that the promoters of the measure feared they would meet opposition which would manifest itself in antagonism to the legislation by the representatives of these districts. Later there seemed to be a change of mind in some parts of the country about the bill, and today the Republican majority believes that it can get sufficient support for this measure to secure its enactment. But only the most cheerful members think that the law will be written on the statute books before the summer wanes.

An official of an agricultural organization recently has told the joint house and senate committee which has been holding hearings on the measure that the farmers of the country are opposed to it. Some of the friends of the bill say this official does not represent the majority agricultural opinion. Of course this remains to be proved and, as things are now, there must be a clearing up of the situation before the majority in congress will attempt to speed the measure on its passage.

People Would Pay, of Course. Of course, if a subsidy bill is voted, the people must pay money to secure the end sought, that of making not only a self-supporting but a profitable American merchant marine. Taxation will be increased unquestionably, but the argument is that the multiplication of markets for American goods and the consequent increase in American manufacturing and agricultural activities will more than pay for the additional taxes. This cheerful way of looking at it is called by the opponents of the measure "a smile over a misunderstanding of facts."

The best thing for a man who wants to know today is to read the report submitted to the President by the shipping board and then to read the reports of the hearings which the joint committee of the two houses of congress has been holding. Both sides of the controversy then can be learned in detail and if a man has something of the judicial in his makeup he probably can determine which side he thinks is right.

In the bill which is before congress there is a provision that shippers of goods which are to be carried under the American flag are to be allowed income tax deductions equal to 5 per cent of the freight on the merchandise which is so shipped. The opponents of the measure say that this looks good, but, as one rather bitter antagonist of the legislation has said, it is merely getting money from Peter to pay a bill to Paul.

Fight On for Congress Seats. Progress is being made in the plans of the Democratic and Republican campaign committees for vigorous work in the coming fight for seats in congress.

Republicans say it is certain that President Harding, within the limits of the proprieties of his position, will give every assistance that he can give in the campaign for the re-election of a Republican congress. It is expected that Woodrow Wilson will do what he can in behalf of Democracy's cause in the fight.

In congress today the Democrats are using every piece of legislation proposed by the Republicans as a subject for criticism and for somewhat extended discussion, especially on the floor of the senate where time is a senator's own. The Democrats still believe, apparently, that they have more than a fair chance next fall to reduce materially the Republican majority in the senate and perhaps to capture the house.

Some time ago it was intimated that the leading Republicans of the so-called old school would not be over-hearty in their support of any candidates who in the primaries had succeeded in defeating for nomination men who had maintained through the years a so-called Republican regularity. Now this rumor is denied and it is said that the President will insist that even if men of his own trend of thought had not been successful in securing nominations, every support must be given the successful ones in order to maintain a Republican majority in congress.

Budget Figures Disputed.

There is not a Republican or a Democratic senator or representative in congress who has not been coached directly or indirectly by the members of the national committees and the congressional campaign committees as to methods and means for the finding of seemingly weak points in the enemy's armor. Senator Underwood, the leader of the Democrats in the senate, has taken it on himself to attack the Republican claims for economic legislation and has endeavored to show that the opposition party's tendencies are spendthrift rather than saving.

The budget has broken into politics. Republican congressmen claim that the figures which show saving are true fact, while the Democrats say that the figures have been juggled. "Plainly deceptive" were the words that Representative Byrne, ranking Democrat of the house appropriations committee, used to present his party's attitude toward President Harding's letter and Director Dawes' report on the budget.

The budget, the bonus, the tariff, and virtually everything else of legislative or administrative size which the Republicans depend upon as a bulwark of defense and, in a way, of offense during the coming campaign, are subjects of attack daily in both houses of congress by the Democratic foe. The Republicans stand to the defense of everything that they have done or are promising to do, and the hourly demonstration is one of give and take, and the controversy is not uninteresting to hear and to watch.

Fess Versus Rouse.

The chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee is Representative Arthur B. Rouse of Kentucky. As a leader in the campaign he will be pitted against Simeon D. Fess, the chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee. Mr. Rouse has issued a public statement to the effect that congress ought to quit and go home, because "the great millionaire Republican ways and means committee of the house" has done those things which it ought not to have done and has left undone those things which it ought to have done.

Naturally the Republican campaign committee chairman, Doctor Fess, is putting forth statements in the reverse. In 1920 the congressional campaign committee was not overworked, for apparently Doctor Fess believed an overwhelming victory was to come to his party and that undue labor was unnecessary. Today, however, the viewpoint seems to be somewhat different. The Republicans will leave nothing undone to hold congress and the Democrats will leave nothing undone to get hold of it.

Day by day the impression grows in Washington that the coming campaign will be much livelier than anyone anticipated. The Democratic committees are working daily and nightly to perfect their organization in every congressional district where they have the slightest chance of gaining a seat. It is the truth that it took the Republicans some time to wake up to the dangers which confront the party. They realize them today and no politician of the Republican faith except those who have the "claiming-everything" habit denies that the party must work to win.

Two Leaders Retire Next March.

On March 4 next Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, a member of congress for nearly half a century, and John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, who has seen service in the house and senate for more than a quarter of a century, will retire to private life. Cannon has been a Republican leader and Williams a Democratic leader virtually from the hour that they reported for work in Washington.

Cannon was four times speaker of the house of representatives and Williams was three times the candidate of his party for the speakership, but failed of election because the Republicans were in the majority. Cannon and Williams have been known as picturesque figures in the legislative halls during the entire time of their service. The country knows that both are able men.

Cannon and Williams have been bitter political opponents for many years, but their personal relations have been of the most amicable kind.

TO PRESIDENT HARDING

Premier Lloyd George, who is the outstanding figure at Genoa, is quoted as saying:

"I wish America were here. Some people think we want the United States for some selfish purpose. This is not true. We want America because she exercises a peculiar authority; her very aloofness gives her the right to speak. America could exercise an influence no other country could command. She could come here free and disinterested; and, with the prestige which comes from her independent position, she would come with the voice of peace. But America is not here; so Europe must do her best to solve the problems in her own way."

"We triumphed in the war, but our triumph will not last forever. If our victory develops into oppression, vengeance will follow, just as Germany's action, which started the world war, was followed by vengeance. We must be just and equitable and show strength; we must realize that Europe is not on good terms, and that storms are arising which we must deal with. We had hoped that the end of the great war meant the end of brute force, but we find Europe's problems are solved there is no assurance that force has given way to right."

He is dealing with a very trying situation and he needs the help of the United States. It would not hurt us to have a representative there only he went empowered to advise only and with the understanding that our nation is not bound by any conclusions reached, except as our people, acting through Congress and the President or at a referendum, may expressly approve.

The failure of the United States to enter the League of Nations was a national and international calamity, the responsibility for which was divided between the refusal of Republicans to ratify the Covenant WITHOUT reservations and the refusal of the Democrats to ratify the treaty WITH reservations. The Covenant was so much more important than the reservations that it was unspeakable folly for either side to subordinate the idea of international cooperation to the minor details about which they differed.

The League permitted any nation to withdraw on two years' notice. If the Treaty had been accepted WITHOUT reservations our nation could have made its stay in the League dependent upon such changes as it desired. Likewise, if our nation had ratified the Treaty WITH reservations, the reservations could have been changed afterwards. As it is, both sides will share in history the shame of shirking a solemn responsibility.

But a mistake in the past should not prevent wiser action in the present and future. It matters little whether it is called a League of Nations or an Association of Nations or anything else, our nation should use its influence to aid in securing world peace. Lloyd George is right when he says: "America could exercise an influence no other country could command. She could come here FREE and disinterested, and, with the prestige which comes from her independent position, she would come with the voice of peace."

What extent can this nation give before the final judgment bar for its failure to respond to such a call at such a time?

The day after the armistice was signed Lloyd George announced that the treaty of peace should inaugurate on earth the rule of the Prince of Peace and President Wilson called his approval of the lofty sentiment. But the Treaty of Versailles did not inaugurate the reign of the Prince of Peace. The gaping wounds and the hot blood, the spirit of revenge and the remembrance of injuries that had been inflicted obscured the path to peace. The Allies lost a golden opportunity to lay the foundation for an enduring peace in friendship and cooperation. The Arms Conference took a step toward disarmament, but it failed to reduce land armaments, without which world peace is impossible.

Now the opportunity comes again; the world is wiser—a wisdom that has come partly from reflection and partly from a clearer understanding of the conditions that bar progress in any other direction, or along any other line.

The world has been wearing the devil's yoke and the devil's burden has become too heavy to be borne. Christ's yoke is not only easy but His burden is the only bearable one. The world needs an anthem in which the world can join and there is no other than the one that started the shepherds at Bethlehem: "On earth peace, good will toward men."

The world must get back to God and find its hope of reconstruction in the promise of universal brotherhood.

Mr. President, you are a Christian and your sense of responsibility to God must soon compel you to propose an appeal to the estranged nations to forget the past and, with an eye single to the world's future welfare, begin the work of friendly cooperation in the upbuilding of Europe. You made a splendid beginning in calling the Arms Conference, but what will its work avail if Europe is to become again a slaughter house? And how shall we escape, made up as our population is of all the bloods that will be mingled on battlefields, if Europe again beats her plowshares into swords?

You are a man of prayer. Mr. President—you are the first President to include the Lord's Prayer in a public address; I beg you to turn aside a moment from things exclusively national and ask for guidance in this world crisis. "Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

AIRPLANE WOULD NOT COME DOWN

Pilot Found Mysterious Place in Air Off the Coast of New South Wales

London, May 16.—There is area on earth—or, rather, over it—where an airplane will not descend from Australia comes the report of a remarkable air phenomenon which has been confirmed by investigation and explain by meteorologists.

"Airplane pilots when flying over New South Wales Coast facing the vastness of the South Pacific have reported the amazing experience that when the time came for them to descend nearer the earth, preparatory to alighting, they found that instead of sliding down their machines showed an obstinate and extraordinary tendency to keep on rising. One airman, in fact, piloting a medium powered 'taxiplane' type of machine, put the bow of his craft earthward in order to make a graceful glide down and when he looked at his height recorder a moment or so later to see how far he had descended he saw with amazement that the dial registered him as actually going up in the air backward."

Going Up Instead of Down. "He dipped the bow of his machine still steeper, only to find that he was still going up instead of down. It was not, indeed, till he switched his engine on and flew for for the ground that he overcame the mysterious force at work and began to reduce his altitude."

"And now for the explanation of this astonishing affair. Along the coast of New South Wales there is a long mountain chain. Great upward wind trends, rushing in from thousands of miles seaward, impinge upon these mountains and being deflected sent vast eddies upward almost to unknown heights. And it is in these huge invisible and abnormal currents, blowing not horizontally but almost vertically upward, that air pilots have been caught, to their own intense bewilderment."

LEGION IS ENTERING POLITICS

We were always lead to believe that the American Legion was non-partisan in nature but since the Legion is going to bring J. Banks Kurtz here we learn differently. Kurtz is a candidate for Congress and has no connection with the Legion in any way whatever. He isn't a member and he has never proved himself an advocate of anything helpful to the Legion. The thing helpful to the Legion is the only reason that we know for his coming to Bedford on the 30th is to pull all the strings he can for himself and there must be some one on the Legion program Committee who is an old guard politician. Every Democrat ought to be at the meeting and leave it to the G. O. P. to carry it along. There are plenty of able orators around without going to Blair County and to a candidate for office. While Kurtz is on the platform some one might ask him if he stands for the bonus without qualifications. Try out the gentleman to see if he stands for the Harding Administration to freeze out the farmer and the laborer and feather the nest of the rich and vote for the Corporations.

UNCLE HANK

Owls to be a great number of motors, you can't get up on the charm of a baby's hind foot.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

BABY'S BATH

Cleanliness plays a most important part in the health of a child, and the small amount of work and time needed are worth the trouble.

The baby may be given a full tub bath when he is ten days old, provided the cord has come off. Baby should be bathed quickly, as it is weakening to keep him in the water too long. Castile or some plain white soap should be used sparingly, and baby should never be soaped before he is put into the water.

It is a good plan to see that everything is ready before starting. A clean soft wash cloth, or cheese cloth, soap, a small pin cushion for safety pins, a soft towel, a tub of warm water, and a cup of boiled water with an extra piece of clean soft cloth to wipe out the nose and eyes are needed. It is a good idea to have a thermometer and to have the degrees gradually cooling to 90 degrees. If you have no thermometer, test the water with your own elbow. Be sure to have plenty of water.

Put the child into the water, supporting its back with your left hand, having your fingers well spread out. Apply the soap with a piece of soft cheese cloth or flannel. Be sure to get the water over the baby's back and head.

Powder may be used sparingly, but not until the body is thoroughly dry. It should be applied between the thighs and under the arms, and rubbed over the surface with the hand until only a very thin layer remains, for too much powder closes up the pores.

Of course a child should be washed in a warm room, but it is a great mistake to do this close to a fire. A baby's skin is tender and as sensitive to heat as to cold.

In summer the baby requires more bathing than in winter. Sponging baby off with a wet cloth is a means toward comfort on a warm day.

The baby is premature or very delicate the daily bath may be omitted. In eczema and many other forms of skin diseases, it is often harmful to use soap in the water. Never bathe the baby within an hour after feeding.

Many mothers like to have a table on which to change, dress and bathe the baby. It does away with much lifting, lessens the strain on the mother and gives her freer use of both hands. This table is about 30 inches from the floor. A common kitchen table with the legs sawed off to the desired height will answer every purpose.

If the table top is made of white maple or oak with very tight cracks, it can be scrubbed with hot water and soap as often as needed. If soft wood or an old table is used, it will be better to cover the top with oil cloth. Of course the baby is always put down on a soft pad, whatever the table top is made of. The mother may either stand or sit at this table when using it.

Next week's talk will be "Baby's Special Organs."

WHILE WE LIVE

He had the proper hunch who said that we shall be a long time dead. Let's seize the minute and the hour and work therein with greater power. Have I some sin that calls for smothering? Let me arise and start to bashing. O let me bust that serpent's head, for I shall be a long time dead. Can I assist some weary soul who sees far off a hopeless goal? May I be ever friendly found; I'll be a long time under ground. Have I a wife or fiancée? O let me love her day by day, do lots of courting, lots of kissing, for I shall be a long time missing. Yea let me fall not here on earth to seize whatever joys have worth, yet keep my duty clear before me, the earth will rest a long time o'er me. On some good day no longer mortal, I hope to pass through Peter's portal. I hope my head a crown to wear to hide the spots that have no hair, but let me see before I go my job well finished here below. I shall not care, my tasks well sped, even though I am a long time dead. BOB ADAMS

HELP TO LOCATE MISSING PEOPLE

C. L. Maneval, one of the Everett undertakers, was yesterday named as representative in Bedford county for Fleeman's National Identification Bureau.

Dr. William H. Bailey of the National organization was a visitor in that city yesterday and stated that it is the purpose of the organization to place on file identification marks of all missing people throughout the United States and to receive from the representative identification marks of all unclaimed and unidentified bodies in his territory, checking all the information from the entire country through one bureau.

The value of this bureau can readily be seen when there are approximately 75,000 persons buried annually in the United States in the "Potter's field" unclaimed and unidentified.

If there is anyone in the county who has a relative missing and wishes a set of records for them, see the local representative and have the information placed before the bureau.

Firestone CORD TIRES

The tire section above at the left shows the condition of a Firestone 33x4 1/2 Cord Tire after 20,994 miles on a Yellow Cab in Chicago.

The section at the right was cut from a new Cord of the same size. Careful measurements show that only 1/3 of the tread of the tire on the Yellow Cab has been worn away after this long, grueling test. The carcass is intact after more than 11,000 revolutions.

Firestone Cords have averaged over 10,000 miles on Chicago Yellow Cabs (1,200 cabs all Firestone equipped). In thousands of instances, they have given from 15,000 to 30,000 miles.

Look at the tread—scientifically angled against skid, massive and heavy in the center where the wear comes, tapered at the edges to make steering easy and to protect the carcass against destructive hinging action of high tread edges. The carcass is air bag expanded to insure uniform tension and paralleling of every individual cord. It is double "gum dipped" to make sure that each cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber.

This is the reason why Firestone Cords unfailingly deliver extraordinary mileage. It explains the unanimous demand of thoughtful tire buyers for these values. The local Firestone dealer will continue to provide the personal service that makes Firestone tire comfort and economy complete.

RECENT DEATHS

MRS. IDA L. ICKES

Mrs. Ida L. Ickes, the wife of Harry Ickes of Wolfsburg, died Wednesday, May 17, in a Philadelphia Hospital after apparently recovering from an operation which she underwent a few weeks ago. Her body was brought back to her home and her funeral conducted in the absence of her pastor by Rev. J. Albert Eyer, was held in the Methodist Episcopal church at Wolfsburg, of which she was a member. Interment was made in Mt. Smith Cemetery.

All who knew her paid tribute to the splendid qualities of which she was possessed. No finer thing could be said of any woman than of her: "She was a wonderful mother." That she was highly respected in the community and will be missed not only in the home from which she has gone out but by all who had the privilege of knowing her was evident from the fact that the church could not accommodate all her friends who wished to show respect to her on Sunday afternoon. Many beautiful floral tributes bore testimony to the esteem in which she was held.

She was born January 26, 1864 and was aged, therefore, at the time of her death, 58 years, 3 months and 21 days. In 1884 she married Harry Ickes who, with the following children, mourn the great loss which they have suffered: Mrs. Amy Moore head, Frank, Samuel, George, Charles, Hazel, Edwin and Anna. Two children, Clara and Daniel, preceded her to the spirit world.

Her maiden name was Householder and she is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Eugene Bruce, of Saxton; Mrs. May Rindard, of Riddleburg; George, of Pittsburgh; William, of West Virginia; Samuel, of Saxton; David, of Williamsburg and Charles, of Akron, Ohio.

Truly "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for their works shall follow them."

John Z. Kockendorfer

A widely known farmer of Bedford county, died at 12 o'clock midnight, Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Kegarise of Salemville, following a long illness. Death was due to a complication of diseases. He was a cripple for twenty-three years, suffering a fracture of the hip in a fall from a tree on his farm. His wife, Mary B. who was married fifty-six years ago, died just four weeks ago. He was aged 79 and spent his entire life in Bedford county. Surviving are three children: Gilbert Kockendorfer of Altoona; Mrs. John Perrin of Williamsburg and Mrs. John Kegarise of Salemville. Also a brother, Daniel of Exeter, Neb., and a sister, Mrs. Susan Krepps of Hopewell. The funeral was held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock with services in the First Church of the Brethren, New Enterprize. Interment was made in the New Enterprize cemetery.

MRS. JOHN W. SHUCK

Mrs. John W. Shuck died at her home, Urbana, Illinois, at one o'clock Saturday, May 20, 1922. Mrs. Shuck was formerly Miss Julia Benner. Her husband, John W. Shuck, is a son of the late Daniel Shuck, a life-long resident of Bedford. Her husband, a son, Harry, and a daughter, Mrs. O. K. Doney, mourn the loss of a good wife and kind mother, children and three great granddaughters.

Mrs. Bertie Mickel

SAMUEL M. RALSTON—A SENATE ASSET

While Democrats naturally rejoice over the defeat of the administration's favorite, Senator Harry S. New in the Indiana primaries, carrying with it a repudiation of the Harding administration by Indiana Republicans, the greatest cause for rejoicing by Democrats is found in the character of the Democratic nominee for Senate in that state, former Governor Samuel M. Ralston as the opponent of former Senator Beveridge in the fall election.

Equally gratifying is the fact that the Democrats of Indiana were so generally favorable to Governor Ralston's candidacy, which is no reflection whatever upon his four competitors, who received altogether half as many votes as the Democratic nominee. The result simply shows that the Democratic party in Indiana, big and large, wanted Governor Ralston to represent the state in the United States Senate.

Most significant of all is that the Democratic vote increased 170 percent over the primary vote of two years ago and the Republican vote increased only 70 percent. Governor Ralston's total vote about equals the total vote cast for Mr. Beveridge.

It is interesting to note also that the Democratic vote was relatively larger in the rural districts than in the cities, indicating that the farmer, who has been gritting his teeth and biding his time, will make his protest against Republican inefficiency and incompetency felt in November.

The administration of Samuel M. Ralston as Governor of Indiana, in itself would constitute a successful platform upon which to conduct a campaign for the Senate, and when to his record as Governor an added the domestic issues of the present campaign—tariff, taxation, extravagance, inefficiency, the Newberry scandal, naval oil scandal, Goldstein scandal and the numerous other scandalous assaults upon the Civil Service and other almost literally too numerous to mention, the election of Governor Ralston by a large majority ought to be made double sure.

The people of Indiana have not forgotten that when Samuel M. Ralston was elected Governor the state was burdened with a debt of long standing, and that when he retired at the end of his term, the state of Indiana was out of debt and had a large surplus.

The United States Senate has plenty of orators. What is needed more than anything else is big, able, practical men of the caliber of Samuel M. Ralston.

told him, drooping a little at the telling, "but Jerry—He's my baby, an' I keep him in the shanty till his pappy comes home. You hear, the hull of you, don't you?"

Her eyes were roving from one to another, but her voice lowered on each word, because in the steady gaze of Old Marc and his deputies she saw no relenting.

"I'd rather he'd die," she screamed. "I'd rather he'd be next to Granny Hope in the graveyard!—Get out of here, I say."

The scene was even more nerve-racking than MacKenzie had expected. "Take him away from her, Bowers," he ordered, turning to one of the men.

The man spoken to stepped forward in evident unwillingness; but a shout from MacKenzie made him grab for the child. With one hand the frenzied girl beat at him with all her energy, but he struck down her slim young fingers as if they had been twigs. Thrusting one arm around her, he caught Wee Jerry by the shoulders.

Polly Struggled Madly, and the Child Shrieked and Clung to His Sister With All the Puny Strength He Had.

But to disengage the boy's clutch from the chestnut curls called forth all the quickness the man possessed. Polly struggled madly, and the child shrieked and clung to his sister with all the puny strength he had.

"Keep away, Percival," snapped MacKenzie, pushing Robert backward. "If you lay one finger on my men, I'll take the girl along to jail."

To save the girl he loved, Robert compelled himself to stand by while the boy was torn bodily from her. He saw one of the men drag a blanket from the bed and throw it around Wee Jerry.

Then he snatched at the girl, but she quickly eluded his grasp. How awfully her eyes glowed, and how her face twitched!

"Get out with him before she cuts up any more," growled Marcus, as Polly bounded forward only to be met by the speaker's outstretched arms.

"If you make another scene, my lady," he rapped out, "I'll have you arrested for obstructing the law. And remember this, buzzy, I'm going to get you next!"

His threat against herself meant nothing to Polly Hopkins. But the word "law"! It struck at her brain like a hammer. She suddenly felt as if a tidal wave, strong and relentless, had broken over her. It was the same law taking Jerry that had imprisoned Daddy Hopkins, that had carried away Larry Bishop from his woman. The thought brought her up with a sharp gasp. She did not care what they did with her, but little Jerry, Wee Baby Jerry!

"What you gosh! to do with him, mister?" she begged, wringing her hands. "Tell me that! I can't let 'im go till you do!"

She caught at his arm, and the strong brown fingers dug deep into his flesh.

"Look into the paper there and you'll see where I'm going to take him," answered MacKenzie. "Let go of my arm! There!" He wrenched himself free. Then, enraged and with eyes flashing, he shouted, "Get out with the kid, you men, and start off!"

As usual her feet were in Jeremiah's boots, and as usual she wore his coat. Her curls were covered with snow, and as she studied the dark-faced man she shook drops of water from them. She advanced to and him, choking with emotion. She saw Wee Jerry and gazed, her hands outstretched.

Percival was near her now, and she was too terrible for sympathy. All at once she started forward; and he made a desperate effort to stop her.

"Pollyop," he pleaded. As she raced through the doorway, he called: "Wait—wait—"

In an instant he was out beside her, speaking her name softly, imploringly. She paid no heed to him, but hung up her arms. And then she laughed! Marcus MacKenzie was standing beside his horse, and on beyond in the lane, a carriage was rolling away, from which came piteous screams from Jerry.

"Pollyop," entreated Robert. But Polly had bounded from him toward the man and the horse.

"I hope," she shrieked at MacKenzie, "I hope your hands'll wither off; I'm wishin' all you love'll die before your eyes, an' every day I'll be askin' Granny Hope's lovin' God to d—n you till you drop—rotta' in your grave."

Marcus had halted with his foot in the stirrup. He had heard every word she had uttered; and drops of cold sweat gathered on his brow. Then, with an oath, he vaulted into the saddle, put the spurs to his horse and galloped up the hill after the retreating carriage.

Robert was leaning limply against the side of the shanty when Polly Hopkins turned swiftly back. He spoke to her; and she looked dazedly at him. Then she laughed again, directly into his face; and the young man, almost as distraught as she, tried to take hold of her.

"You scoot, too," she said to him; "get out, an' stay out; an'—an' tell your lily-livered cousin, I say, I hope if she ever has a baby it won't have no eyes to see 'er with, nor no mouth to kiss 'er with—I hope—"

"Oh, God!" groaned Robert. Before he could get back his wits, she had rushed past him into the shack, slammed the door and barred it against him.

For more than two hours Polly Hopkins lay face down on her cot. During that time her loving heart had broken and died within her. She had no longer an incentive to live, no more a desire to look forward to Daddy's home-coming.

When at length she crawled to the floor, all signs of tears had disappeared, leaving the once glowing eyes dull and expressionless. There was no one left to love save the billy goat, and to him she gave no heed.

In her aimless wandering about the shanty she paused before the reproduction of "The Greatest Mother in the World." Polly did not care for her any more either. Deliberately she took an old coat and hung it carefully over the glorious solemn face. She never wanted to look upon it again—Never—Never!

Then, taking the ax, she went out and, as deliberately as she had hidden from view the picture, so did she back from above the door the welcoming sign.

When it lay at her feet, battered and partly broken, she muttered over the words, "If your heart is loving and kind come right in. If it ain't scoot off."

She had learned her lesson at last. Hearts were not loving and kind, after all. Then, with powerful strokes of the ax, she split the slab in pieces. Unfathomable depths of hate and revenge had swallowed her soul! Polly Hopkins was done with love forever!

CHAPTER XIV.

"God-Almighty, Polly brat!" exclaimed Larry Bishop one evening, "what made you come out a night like this, huh?"

The girl went to the stove and in silence extended her hands over its top.

"What's up, Pollyop?" the man demanded again, curiously, dropping into a chair. "You look something awful!"

And so she did! The long-lashed eyes had gathered and held an indelible expression of hatred. The fair, lovely face knew tender sympathy no more. She was no longer Polly of the Sun. For her that orb had become merely a ball in the sky, hot like the stove and bright like the candle flame, only more so. Nor did the pale winter moon ever catch her dazzling smiles. The winking stars had forgotten weeks ago that once a squatter girl had stolen out nightly to throw upward a kiss, begging them to deliver it to the crucified one there beyond them—the good Jesus who sat on the golden throne and who had sent her the message by Granny Hope that "Love were stronger'n hate any day."

As usual her feet were in Jeremiah's boots, and as usual she wore his coat. Her curls were covered with snow, and as she studied the dark-faced man she shook drops of water from them. She advanced to and him, choking with emotion. She saw Wee Jerry and gazed, her hands outstretched.

venge, had completely exhausted her. She was so tired that when she reached Larry she crouched before him on the floor and turned a pale, beseeching face up to him.

"I've come, Larry Bishop," she began gravely, "to ask you to help me to even up a little with Old Marc."

The squatter's head went up, and a startled expression shot into his fierce eyes. Then he sank lower in his chair, and the fire died out of his countenance.

"Who can get even with that d—n brute?" he muttered after a while. "Squatters can't! We'd all go to Auburn if we muss up him or his'n."

A white young face shoved so close to his that Bishop drew back.

"Who cares a d—n about Auburn?" Pollyop exclaimed roughly. "We won't go there till we've tore Old Marc's heart to pieces an' made it hurt like yours does, Larry, like mine does for Jerry an' Daddy Hopkins. Wouldn't you be willin' to spend a few years in jail if you could make him howl an' go almost mad like me an' you have, Larry?"

Bishop looked beyond her head into a dark corner. It was in that spot he often imagined he saw the wraith of his woman. His unsteady regard settled; and the ghost woman rose mistily, gazing at him with unearthly eyes. Then the pale, unsmiling phantasm extended her arms and within them appeared a frail infant.

"God!" burst from his lips like a shot from a gun.

Pollyop glanced backward over her shoulder. But the shudder that ran over him brought her haggard face back to his.

"Ain't your heart hurtin' something awful for your Betty woman an' your brat now, this very minute?" she queried abruptly, as if she, too, had seen the ghastly thing in the corner.

"God, yes!" he shivered, taking firm hold of his chin to hide the tremble of it.

She seized his arm viselike, the grip drawing a groan from the squatter. "An' wouldn't you just love to see Old Marc twist an' squirm like a stepped-on baby snake, huh?" came in one long, sobbing breath.

Again the shifty look of the tortured man came to rest on the gloom beyond. "I'd die for it, so I would, Pollyop," he cried. "Out with what you got in your bean, Pol; an' I'll listen, so help me God!"

Pollyop leaned heavily against him, panting. She was making an effort to tell him her plan. With a swift upward motion of her head, she began to talk in broken tones; and as she proceeded, Larry Bishop raised straighter in his chair.

Polly's voice trailed into silence; and Larry sent one hasty look over her head. The wraith smiled sadly at him and was gone. He shook himself and struggled to his feet. Then a broad, wicked grin spread his lips apart, and he laughed aloud. Pollyop, still on the floor, laughed, too, hysterical sobs catching at her throat, and a desire to scream forcing her hands to her mouth. Such awful sounds were unusual in the Silent City, where even honest mirth was no longer heard because the men and women scarcely dared breathe for fear an enemy from Ithaca would suddenly appear.

"Glorious to God!" ejaculated the man, hoarsely, "that's the how of it, brat! It'll be a whack for my dead woman, an'—"

"An' a good whack for the Hopkins tribe, too," cried Polly, scrambling up.

She Turned to the Door but Halted With Her Hand on the Latch.

"I'll be a black Thanksgiving for Old Marc, huh, Larry—I'm goin' back home now."

She turned to the door, but halted with her hand on the latch.

"You promised I could do it, Larry," she reminded him. "You'll tell Lye Bragger that, too, won't you?"

Sinking limply into his chair, Bishop wiped his wet lips.

"Yep, lass," he assented with a groan. "You can turn the trick; I promise you that."

If Jeremiah Hopkins had seen his girl, his Polly of the Sun, when she went home that night, he would not have recognized her. Her face was empty, pitiless, and as white as the snow under her feet.

Then she waited stolidly day after day, feeding the billy goat but absently, mindfully, asking no questions of Larry or Lye Bragger how soon her

THE PHOTOGRAPH

By MOLLIE MATHER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Janey sat looking at her adored friend.

"Why," she asked impulsively, "do you never have your picture taken, Mollie? I have not seen one in the house, and you would—" Janey's eyes were caressing, "make such a lovely picture."

Miss Mollie Deming, spinster, smiled. "No one would value my photograph, unless it might be you," she replied. "My relatives would doubtless write polite notes of appreciation when they received them, and relegate them to some unremembered corner."

"You know better than that," Janey jeered.

She jumped to her feet.

"Anyway, I want a picture and I am going to have it. You look especially lovely today, like some sweet shepherdess lady, with your soft crinkly white hair, and your true-blue eyes. Poor Terry will be glad of a job. He really should have been an artist in the city. Sentiment, holding him here, alone prevented."

Mollie Deming laughed, when she and the girl Jane were at home again. "Terry posed me so many times and was altogether painstaking, that his efforts should be rewarded with success," she said.

"You looked—" Janey mused, "so pretty, and, sort of wistful, sitting there—Mollie! Do you know, that is the way your eyes always impress me, by their wistfulness? Tell me, please, did you have an unhappy love affair? I wonder so much about you at times—I suppose, because I love you. I would be your confidante, Mollie."

The older woman gazed tenderly, thoughtfully, into the eager young face upraised to hers.

"People would tell you—your own mother may have told you, Janey—that I was in a careless, unthinking way, noted years ago for my conquests. It was at the time considered clever to flaunt one's captivating power. And I—well, well, there were many young men who came to my uncle's home, and I, uncle's ward and charge, played a merry game of hearts with them all, my own heart ever untouched in the game. Some day, I hoped to find my true love, to marry and settle down to a life of devotion. And when he came, my own love, I knew him; knew him instantly, by the thrill of joy that filled my days. And he loved me. That, I did not doubt. Why doubt the sincerity of this man, when others had been sincere? I think I lived in a dream—" Miss Mollie's eyes were misty, across the years; still her voice trembled its sorrow. "I live on in that dream of the past," she ended, sadly.

Janey's hands went out to her. "He died, then?" she questioned—"your lover?"

"I almost wish that I might tell you so," Mollie hesitated.

"No," she added, "for the first time, I will speak the truth. It was thought that John Douglas, like others, had been jilted. But one knew, and after John disappeared this friend of his came and told me the truth. It was I whom John Douglas had jilted, heartlessly, and with a purpose. The friend said that he had been instructed to tell me that John deliberately planned my punishment, as he had deliberately, and—oh, so skillfully, acted his part."

"He was charming in manner, you see, and well known for his winning way with women. So, coming to our small town, and hearing of my merry, never-may-care flirtations, John Douglas confidently and successfully planned the retaliation of winning my own heart, to cast it as carelessly away. But this I could not guess, as he held me close in his arms and bade me goodbye, until tomorrow."

"Tomorrow," he promised gently, "I will come back to you. Tomorrow, my dearest, watch for me."

"So, through all the tomorrow I have watched and waited; and have lived how wearily no one may know—my punishment."

When Janey framed her friend's photograph and placed it upon her dresser, she was moved distressfully later to hide that same photograph away. For the sadness of Mollie's pictured eyes had a provoking trick of bringing quick tears to her own.

"That man!" exclaimed Janey contemptuously. "Fancy being true to the memory of such a creature."

Then one day, as Janey entered unannounced Miss Mollie's sitting room, she faced a picture. And the two central figures facing the picture continued, happily, oblivious of her presence.

"It was fate!" the distinguished appearing man was saying, and even in her astonishment Janey responded sympathetically to the sincerity of that voice.

"When I thought that I had utterly lost you, Mollie—when the never-ceasing longing brought me back to this old town to view again, if only in secret, your face, I came upon that photograph in Terry's window. You, Mollie, had only forgiveness in the sweetness of your expression—had only griefed appeal in your eyes. So I am here, dearest, for that punishment I would have inflicted upon you has long been my own."

Janey closed the door noiselessly behind her, and when she was again in her own room, she hummed a gay little song as she searched out her friend's picture and replaced it upon the dresser.

Japanese Coral. It is reported that about 65,000 pounds of coral, worth $700,000, are taken each year from the coral beds of Japan. The work is done by divers, the master diver receiving and grading the coral as it is brought in. Wholesale and exporting firms keep representatives there to inspect the coral and make bids for it. The color has much to do with the value. The most expensive is "boke," a pale quince color; next in value is pink, then white, light red and dark red.

Bergougnan Oversize Cord Tires—The friendly tires, best quality produced on earth both in quality and workmanship assures us that we are right in our claim of being able to save money for our patrons.

THE IDEAL CORD TIRE we have discontinued as it did not stand up to the claim of the manufacturer and have replaced, by a new tire of another make, every tire which proved deficient, although some of these tires proved very satisfactory to our personal knowledge.

We owe it to our personal reputation to a long and successful business career and to the people whose trust and confidence we value so highly to protect them against annoyance which was our reason for discontinuing this Tire. The Garage business can be transacted on same high caliber of business honesty as other business that by such policy we will lose. Well, if we do, it business that by such policy we will lose, well, if we do, it will be our own money.
